PLACEMENT & DIRECTION

Where to hang your Mahadeva

● North-East (Ishanya)

The corner of Ishana — Shiva's own direction, and the pooja corner of the home. Ideal in a prayer room or meditation space.

● East

Awakening and spiritual light: a place of daily prayer, facing the rising sun.

● North

Calm, protective energy that steadies the household and guards the doorway.

Best in a pooja room, meditation corner or a quiet living space. Hang at or slightly above eye level so the deity is never looked down upon; keep the wall clean and free of clutter.

KEY · SYMBOLISM & PRICING

Mahadeva · Crescent of Stillness

A hand-drawn Shiva mandala for inner strength, protection & transformation

1 The Seated Shiva

SILHOUETTE

A solid, textured form seated in stillness — the meditator unmoved by the world, strength held quietly within.

2 The Crescent

MOON IN THE HAIR

The moon resting in his matted locks — the mind held calm and cool, and time itself mastered.

3 The Cobra

RAISED SERPENT

A serpent rises calmly at his shoulder — fearlessness, and mastery over ego, danger and desire.

4 The Trishul

TRIDENT

Three prongs held upright: creation, preservation and dissolution — and the power to end what no longer serves.

5 The Damaru

DRUM & CORD

The small drum bound to the trident's staff — the primal rhythm from which sound, language and creation begin.

6 The Half Mandala

CRESCENT FIELD

A great mandala rises behind him like a crescent moon: the whole universe radiating from the divine, one arc at a time.

7 Peacock Eyes

OUTER BORDER

Eye-shaped petals ring the mandala like a peacock's fan — the all-seeing awareness that misses nothing.

8 Woven Rings

MANDALA LAYERS

Ring after ring of fine, patterned petals — the ordered cosmos, every part in its rightful place.

9 Rudraksha & Bands

BEADS & ARMLETS

Small white beads on brow and wrist, and banded arms — discipline, devotion and the ornaments of the ascetic.

10 The Open Space

WHITE GROUND

Wide, untouched white around the figure — the silence of deep meditation, and the emptiness from which all form arises.
