PLACEMENT & DIRECTION

Where to hang your Patra

● East (Indra)

The direction of sunlight and growth — where a plant would naturally reach. Ideal in a living room, dining space or a bright bedroom.

● North

Steady growth and wellbeing; a calm, welcoming choice for an entrance, hallway or study.

● North-East (Ishanya)

Freshness and clarity — the leaf brings a sense of open air into a quiet corner.

Best in a living room, bedroom, balcony wall or any space you want to feel calm and green without maintenance. Hang at eye level with plenty of white wall around it — the open space in the drawing is part of the piece.

KEY · SYMBOLISM & PRICING

Patra · The Monstera Leaf

A hand-drawn botanical artwork for growth, calm & natural balance

1 The Leaf Body

SOLID BLADE

One broad, fully inked leaf — grounded, generous and whole; the calm presence of something that has grown at its own pace.

2 The Long Stem

FINE DOUBLE LINE

A slender stem drawn as two hairlines, reaching far downward — the quiet connection to root and source that feeds every leaf.

3 The Windows

FENESTRATIONS

Small openings in the blade let light and wind pass through — resilience, and the wisdom to let some things go by.

4 Deep Lobes

SPLIT EDGES

The edge divides again and again into long fingers — room to expand, and the flexibility to bend without breaking.

5 The Heart of the Leaf

BASE & MIDRIB

Where stem meets blade, the lobes gather to a single point — the centre from which all the leaf's growth radiates.

6 The Upward Sweep

LEANING CURVE

The whole leaf leans upward and outward, as if turning toward the sun — a natural pull toward light and growth.

7 Open Space

WHITE GROUND

Most of the sheet is left untouched — breathing room, and the restful stillness a single living thing brings to a space.

8 Rounded Tips

SOFT ENDS

Every lobe finishes in a soft, rounded tip — gentleness, and strength that has no need to be sharp.

9 Hand-Inked Texture

MARKER STROKES

Up close the black is layered stroke over stroke — the patient, repeated care that any growing thing rewards.

10 Natural Asymmetry

UNFORCED FORM

No two lobes match; the leaf is drawn as it grows, not as geometry — the beauty of the imperfect and the alive.
