PLACEMENT & DIRECTION

Where to hang your Sevanti

● East (Indra)

The direction of sunrise and cheerful beginnings — ideal in a kitchen, dining room, café or a child's room.

● North

Wellbeing and plenty: keeps a family space light, open and welcoming.

● North-East (Ishanya)

Freshness and gratitude — a bright note for a quiet corner or hallway.

Best in a kitchen, dining space, café, nursery or any room that should feel sunny and easy. Hang at eye level; the piece also works beautifully as a repeating panel or paired with the Garden of Joy plate.

KEY · SYMBOLISM & PRICING

Sevanti · Field of Daisies

A hand-drawn floral artwork for cheer, gratitude & simple abundance

1 Open Faces

WHITE CENTRES

Every daisy holds a clear white disc at its heart — an open, unguarded cheerfulness that asks for nothing.

2 Ray Petals

RADIATING STROKES

Slender petals fan out from each centre like rays of a small sun — energy given freely in every direction.

3 Twin Rings

LAYERED PETALS

Each flower carries an inner and outer ring of petals — depth beneath simplicity, richness in an ordinary bloom.

4 Nestled Blooms

OVERLAP

Flowers lean into and over one another — a crowd of blessings that shares the space rather than competing for it.

5 The Dark Meadow

INKED GROUND

Rich, hand-inked shadow fills the gaps between flowers — the fertile ground from which every bloom rises.

6 A Full Field

REPETITION

Bloom after bloom fills the whole sheet, none identical — small joys that add up to a life of plenty.

7 Beyond the Edge

NO BORDER

Daisies run off every side of the paper — a meadow that keeps going, as good things tend to.

8 Bold Outlines

PETAL EDGES

Every petal is edged in a firm dark line — clarity, so each flower stands crisp and complete.

9 Light & Dark

CONTRAST

White blooms glow against the deep ground — gratitude that shines brightest when things have been hard.

10 Woven Lines

FINE HATCHING

Hundreds of petals, each drawn stroke by stroke by hand — patience and steadiness behind every cheerful thing.
